Megan Hosken

"I would like to thank Doyon Foundation donors for all of their support. Without their donations, it would have been difficult for me to embark on my ambitions and be financially stable. It has enabled me to pursue my goals in furthering my education."

Megan Hosken, of Fairbanks, Alaska, is a UAF student and an aspiring elementary school teacher who hopes to live and teach right here in Alaska after she graduates. It's a goal that Doyon Foundation is pleased to support.

"The Foundation provided seed money for me to enroll in college and reside on the campus while attending school. It has also enabled me to pay my own fees and expenses without going deeply in debt. I still work at a regular job, but this scholarship has significantly reduced the stress of meeting my financial obligations while enrolled in school," says the 2008 – 2009 Doyon Foundation scholarship recipient.

The scholarship does more than just offer financial assistance. For Megan, it also offers encouragement to excel in school – and beyond.

"With this scholarship comes a responsibility to dedicate myself to succeeding in school and in the future to pay back my Native community through the knowledge and skills that I will obtain," she says.
